Norwegian Julenisse

Dear Children!

In Norway I am known as Julenisse. In England I am known as Father Christmas, and in America as Santa Claus. Winter in Norway lasts from October to April as a third of Norway lies above the Arctic Circle. Thousands of Reindeer live here.

Merry Christmas, or as we say in Norway...

God-Jul!

Story Time Santa

Martin Luther is said to have begun the tradition of the Christmas tree. Lighting the evergreen tree with glowing candles, he told his children the true meaning of the Christ Child, the light of the world, whose birth has so gloriously brightened the sky on that first Christmas Eve.

Not every country has a Santa Claus as we know him. In Sweden, legend has it that little men who live in the forest, Tompte, help create some of the magic. In Sweden, ornaments are made of wheat.

On September 21, 1897, 8-year-old Virginia O’Hanlon wrote a letter to the editor of the New York Sun, Francis Church. It read:

Dear Editor:

I am 8 years old. Some of my little friends say there is no Santa Claus. Papa says “If you see it in The Sun it’s so.” Please tell me the truth. Is there a Santa Claus?

The editor replied:

Yes, Virginia, there is a Santa Claus. He exists as certainly as love, generosity, and devotion exist. And you know that they abound and give to your life its highest beauty and joy. Alas, how dreary would the world be if there were no Santa Claus! It would be as dreary as if there were no Virginias. There would be no child-like faith then, no poetry, no romance to make tolerable this existence. We should have no enjoyment, except in the sense of sight. The eternal light with which childhood fills the world would be extinguished.

No Santa Claus?! Thank God he lives, and he lives forever. A thousand years from now, Virginia, he will continue to make glad the heart of childhood.

When the Julemand, (Christmas Man) appears in December, children pledge their good behavior. However, they know he doesn’t bring the gifts; it’s Papa or Uncle Hans that does that. The Julemand looks very similar to the American Santa Claus, but there just might be some nisser with him to make sure everything is going alright. The nisse, a little dwarf, is very clever about getting around without actually being seen.

In Denmark, the Christmas season is known as the Season of Light in honor of the Christ Child, “the light of the world.”

Much of the country “down under”, under the equator, is very hot and Christmas falls in the heat of the summer. An Australian Christmas wouldn’t be complete without dinner on the “barbie” (the barbecue), as it is often too hot to cook traditional meals indoors. Going to the beach and visiting relatives and friends are typical Aussie Christmas fare. However, there are still many families who try to maintain the more traditional celebration of an English Christmas, with roast goose, plum pudding and all the trimmings.

St. Nicholas comes December 6, St. Nicholas day. It is the official start of the Christmas season in Bavaria. Children put their shoes in front of their doors at night hoping St. Nicholas will fill them with goodies while they sleep. This stems from an old custom when children were instructed to leave out hay, straw, and carrots for his horse; in the morning they would find that St. Nicholas had left them a present.

When the Dutch settled New Amsterdam they brought with them their custom of St. Nicholas, named Sinter Klaas. As more English settled in New Amsterdam, later called New York, they adopted the Dutch St. Nicholas, but had him come on Christmas Eve as their Father Christmas had done (Father Christmas was from England). When English children excitedly tried to say “Sinter Klaas” it came out “Santa Claus,” the name we now know in America.

A Russian Fable

A woman had two daughters, one a kind and gentle stepdaughter, the other a spoiled and mean daughter. One day in a fit of anger and hate, she banished her stepdaughter from the house. As the young girl walked, she began to freeze.

Suddenly Father Ice appeared as a huge blizzard and asked, “Are you cold and unhappy?” She replied “No” as that was her nature. Charmed by her goodliness, he showered her with diamonds. Upon returning home, the wicked mother ushered her mean daughter to reap the same benefits.

As before, Father Ice appeared and asked the same question. She began to scream, curse and complain of her predicament. Father Ice, in disgust of her behavior and bad manners, waived his arms and froze her for eternity.

Grandfather Frost

Russian Santa Claus

Legend tells us that Grandfather Frost lived deep in the woods and came to town on a troika, a sleigh pulled by three horses. He was both stern and jolly and brought gifts to the good children, forgetting those who were naughty. The singing of kolyadki, Russian Christmas carols, is one of the oldest of all traditions. Ornaments made for Christmas trees during the 1800s were of dried fruit, candy, and gold foil walnuts.

St. Nicholas and the Christkind

Many of our Christmas Traditions have been Adopted from German Christmas customs. In Bavaria, St. Nicholas was thought to be the message runner. He took the Children’s requests to heaven while it was the Christ Child, or Liebes Christkind (Dearest Christ Child) who actually brought the gifts to the children’s houses on Christmas Morning.

Clement Clarke Moore, born 1779, is the author of “A Night Before Christmas.” The poem was first published on December 23, 1823. His poem did much to solidify the idea of St. Nicholas as a gift giver.

Most importantly, it changed him from a tall stately fellow to a jolly elf, trimming his robes with fur and giving him a twinkle in his eye! Santa Claus even replaced his horse and wagon with reindeer and a sleigh.

St. Nicholas, Bishop of Myra, was the original Santa Claus. He is said to have been very wealthy and secretly gave away generous portions of his wealth to the needy, especially maidens and children. He was born in the 4th century in a small province of the Roman Empire of Asia Minor. With the emergence of a Christian continent, St. Nicholas became the official gift bringer. Traditionally, a little angel comes with him carrying a big book of names of boys and girls.

Once they were first debuted in 2006, 53 hand-painted Old World Santas encircling the trees in Veterans Memorial Park quickly became a hallmark of the holiday season in Sierra Vista.

Many local families made visiting the Santas a tradition. Some would take an annual photo with a special Santa, measuring their children’s growth by having them pose alongside their favorite jolly giant.

Former Sierra Vista mayor Tom Hessler and his wife Nancy spearheaded the effort to make the Santas, working with local artists Susan Bell, Sue Ann Vannoy, and Laura Sudduth, in addition to numerous other volunteers, to create these handmade pieces of art. The Santas were inspired by traditions and representations from around the world and each included a narrative or poem telling that Santa’s story.

But the Santas’ plywood construction had its limitations and despite efforts to minimize weathering and prevent wear and tear, the original Old World Santas deteriorated over time. In 2018 the Santas were no longer fit for display.

So the City worked with Stronghold Signs to have the original Santa artwork reproduced on high-performance vinyl and mounted on 4-foot by 8-foot weather-resistant aluminum substrate. This has created Santas that can last for decades.

To fund this project, the City developed a “Save the Santas” campaign and turned to the community for help. Individuals, businesses, and organizations quickly rose to the occasion by making $550 donations to sponsor all 53 Santas for reproduction.

This booklet is a companion piece to the revitalized Old World Santas display. It shares the original narratives and poems that tell each Santa’s story.

Thank you to the many people who helped create this beloved Sierra Vista tradition and to those who have helped restore it. Seeing the Santas appear in the park each year fosters a hometown feeling that we hope will connect generations of Sierra Vistans for many years to come.
